Having a breakdown falling behind in online classes

SAD

I can't keep up and I am so lost. There's no real direction in anything and the professors just keep throwing assignments and tests. About to call it quits this semester and try again in the fall.

Same boat here. Might just take the Pass/fail option and try as hard as possible

Do not drop your classes - we are too close to the end - it's pass/ fail lol
Sooooooo email all professors and tell them you are having tech issues
They understand/ they have to
Each day make a schedule
Plan your week
If professor doesn't help - email your advisor
They can talk to professors on your behalf
They can help
Stay strong
Bright side if you finish - is it - you didn't fall behind schedule
So ha Covid "nothing gonna break my stride"
Ask for help! Finish. You got this

The sad thing is that often they are making the tests harder if any..

Speaking as a prof--reach out to your professors and let them know you're struggling. Even if they won't give any accomodations, like someone else said here you can choose to receive a pass/fail instead of a letter grade at the end of the semester. The pass/fail option won't even carry the usual stigma on your transcript bc of the circumstances. Some colleges are even forcing all grades to be pass/fail. So just do what you can, talk to your profs, and keep on keeping on.

Stay strong and email your profs
It will be ok
Even if one prof stays firm you can always appeal after the fact
Hope is alive
Catch up as soon as possible!!!!

Profs are encouraged to be accommodating due to current circumstances and thus all is negotiable--- if a prof is not contact an advisor and ask for help
I would be stunned to find a prof in CUNY who wouldn't be understanding at the moment

Not having a breakdown on my end but I feel this. This is why I didn't want online classes. Some professors/subjects are just really not good online. It's a shit system. I can't even pay attention to these classes anymore.
